Susan Fliss

October Conference

October 7, 2005

Librarians recognize the importance of campus partnerships. How do we find potential partners, identify common needs, and - here's the tricky part - collaborate with others who may have different perspectives, working styles, and communication styles? What are the opportunities, challenges, and roadblocks to effective collaboration? This session will develop a framework and strategies for cross-campus collaboration.

Session Outline:

- I Introduction
- II Collaboration: Why?
- III Collaboration: How? Examine our role as librarians
- IV Challenges
- V Strategies
- VI Conclusion
