

What about polls?

1. How do you think the pollsters polled the people who would actually vote in the mayoral election? How would you do it?
2. Why are different sampling errors listed for whites, blacks, and Hispanics?
3. Are you happy with the number polled by each poll?
4. Do you agree that “undecided voters traditionally swing toward the challenger”? How would that affect your candidacy if you were the challenger?
5. Is it possible that both polls are right? What standards would you apply to tell if a poll is right? Could both be wrong?
