HONOR PRINCIPLE:

You are reminded of your responsibility to uphold the principle of academic honor. In this particular class, the honor principle most obviously comes into play during the in-class quizzes and exams. These quizzes/exams are all closed book and should be completed without discussion with classmates or references to their work.

DISABILITIES:

Pursuant to Section 504 of the Americans with Disabilities Act, the Classics Department has unanimously voted that a student who requires special accommodation because of his or her disability must provide the instructor with written documentation from the Disabilities Coordinator (currently Nancy Pompian). The confidential documentation should both specify the nature of the disability and suggest an appropriate accommodation.
