bioethics

The Department of Clinical Bioethics of the NIH Clinical Center is offering a limited number of postgraduate fellowship positions in bioethics.

The Department of Clinical Bioethics is committed to clinical teaching, consultation, and research. Fellows will participate in the activities and the intellectual life of the department and study ethical issues related to conduct of research, clinical practice, and health policy. Fellows will conduct their research under the guidance of the senior faculty, participate in weekly bioethics seminars, case conferences, ethics consultations, and IRB deliberations, and have access to multiple educational opportunities at the NIH.

Fellowships are two years in length and stipends are based on the applicant's previous experience and the current U.S. government schedule.

For information on the faculty, and other aspects of the department, please visit our website.

eligibility

Applicants should have a Ph.D., M.D., J.D., or other advanced degree in a relevant field. Fellows will be selected on the basis of their previous academic or professional achievements, commitment to scholarship, and the contribution they are likely to make in the field of bioethics. No prior experience in bioethics is necessary.

to apply

Interested applicants should submit an application including a curriculum vitae, a brief statement describing their interests and goals for the fellowship (1,000 words or less), three letters of reference, copies of written or published work, and official transcripts.

application deadline

For two-year fellowships beginning in September of each year, please submit materials by December 31. Notification of acceptance will be March 15.
