Permission to Publish Contract

With some internal Dartmouth College exceptions, permissions to publish, exhibit, broadcast or quote from materials in the Rauner Special Collections requires written permission of the Special Collections Librarian or another appointed agent of the College. The rules governing use of materials in the collections are fully stated in the Special Collections Regulations of Use and Registration Form, which researchers must sign. A copy of the Registration Form may be kept by the researcher, the original is maintained by Dartmouth College.

Subject to the following condition, I/we request permission to reproduce materials from the archival, manuscript (non-book) collections of the Rauner Special Collections, listed below. (Similar use of printed books does not usually require specific permission, though copyright laws may apply. A few printed books, however, particularly those with extensive manuscript annotations are placed under archival/manuscript rules.)

Conditions

1. Credit line for all materials: Courtesy of Dartmouth College Library. This credit must be included for each reproduced image or in each footnote or endnote reference. Additional credits may be necessary if so requested by donors.
2. Permission is granted for one-time use only. Materials may not be reused without the written permission of the appropriate agent of Rauner Special Collections or other appointed agent of the College.
3. Dartmouth College reserves the right to make charges for the use of materials as it deems appropriate in any individual case.
4. In the case of printed materials, the undersigned undertakes to send the Rauner Special Collections proofs or tear sheets of the title pages and page(s) containing reference to and acknowledgements of the materials listed below. In the case of motion picture films, slideshows, videos, homepage and other non-book publications, the undersigned undertakes to send Rauner Special Collections still photographs, photocopies, or printouts of the title frame or homepage and the frame(s) or page(s) showing credits.
5. Dartmouth College does not claim to control the rights to all the materials in its collections. The publishing party assumes all responsibility for clearing reproduction rights and for any infringement to any U.S. Copyright Laws.
6. If permission is granted for the publishing party to photograph or scan any visual materials in the Rauner Special Collections, all such negative, positive, or digital reproduction must given to Rauner Special Collections.

I/we here with agree to the conditions specified avbove.
