UAID: Summer Public Health Opportunity in Haiti – Only 10 Spots Available!

UAID is an international non-profit organization that empowers students and communities to eliminate health inequities. Developed in partnership with multidisciplinary healthcare experts in Haiti, UAID is offering ten students the opportunity to lead a public health initiative in Haiti for two weeks this August.

Students will first master the history of public health in Haiti through a rigorous 3-month education program. Armed with this knowledge, participants will shadow physicians and holistic healthcare workers, visit local hospitals and NGOs throughout the countryside, and interact with government health workers to gain a comprehensive understanding of health inequities in the community. Finally, students will combine their knowledge and hands-on experience to create a sustainable solution that UAIDers will implement for years to come!

To learn more about UAID, start a chapter at your school, or apply for exclusive internship positions, please visit: www.uaidintl.org.