

ANNUAL SOCIOLOGY DEPARTMENT AWARDS
June 2009

THE RALPH P. HOLBEN PRIZE was established by Mrs. Ralph P. Holben, and is given each year to the senior major in the Department who showed the greatest promise in the general field of applied sociology, this being the area to which Professor Holben devoted some forty years of teaching at Dartmouth.

Maria L. Castilla

THE MECKLIN PRIZE was established by Mrs. John M. Mecklin (Mrs. Theodore W. Gorden) of Hanover, and is awarded each year to a student majoring in sociology that is judged by the Department as having demonstrated to an outstanding degree the high intellectual standards of originality and vigor that characterized Professor Mecklin's academic career as professor of Sociology at Dartmouth.

Tessa M. Winter

THE SOCIOLOGICAL IMAGINATION AWARD was established by the Sociology Department in 2005 to be presented to those students who have exhibited a strong grasp of the sociological imagination and who use that understanding to promote social justice in everyday life.

Rembert M. Browne II
Katherine E. Harney
Kristopher T. Gebhard
Rebecca G. Poskin

THE SOCIOLOGY DEPARTMENT AWARD FOR OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENT was established by the Sociology Department in 2003 to be presented to the graduating senior with the highest academic achievement.

Lauren G. Farleigh

THE TRUXAL PRIZE was established by an anonymous donor in amounts up to $2,000 to be awarded to the most promising graduating senior who is pursuing graduate work, preferably in Sociology although other areas are also eligible. Professor Truxal was an esteemed member of the Department and later President of Hood College.

Boya Hong
Lisel Murdock