New and Recent Titles

Newlyweds on Tour
Honeymooning in Nineteenth-Century America

Barbara Penner

An original, richly illustrated analysis of American honeymooning, 1820-1900, that offers fresh insights into the intersecting histories of tourism, consumerism, sentiment, sexuality, and conjugality.

“Newlyweds on Tour offers an elegant and persuasive interpretation of nineteenth-century honeymooning in America. Barbara Penner’s work is intellectually sophisticated yet highly intuitive, bringing social theory to bear on familiar traditions in ways that illuminate both. And her readings of material culture—from lithographs to silverware to furniture to architecture—are unmistakably high-quality, top-drawer stuff.”

—A. K. Sandoval-Strausz, University of New Mexico, author of Hotel: An American History

Slavic Sins of the Flesh
Food, Sex, and Carnal Appetite in Nineteenth-Century Russian Fiction

Ronald D. LeBlanc

A pathbreaking “gastrocritical” approach to the poetics of Dostoevsky, Tolstoy, and their contemporaries.

“Slavic Sins of the Flesh offers a magisterial new reading of the Russian classics. It not only illuminates the great works of Dostoevsky and Tolstoy but also tackles larger, underlying questions of Russian culture. By analyzing representations of power and pleasure in texts both familiar and obscure, LeBlanc explores the ideals that shaped Russian society. This book is a triumph of scholarship and innovation.”

—Darra Goldstein, Francis Christopher Oakley Third Century Professor of Russian, Williams College, and Editor in Chief of Gastronomica: The Journal of Food and Culture
New and Recent Titles

Rousseau’s Daughters
Domesticity, Education, and Autonomy in Modern France
Jennifer J. Popiel

Winner of the David H. Pinkney Prize from the Society for French Historical Studies

Provocative assessment of how new ideas about motherhood and domesticity in pre-Revolutionary France helped women demand social and political equality later on

“In this beautifully written and deeply researched book, Jennifer Popiel overturns much of the conventional wisdom about women, the family, and education in the pivotal period, 1760–1830. The new insights leap out from every page and together they add up to nothing less than a fundamental revision of the history of the modern self.”

—Lynn Hunt, Eugen Weber Professor of Modern European History, University of California, Los Angeles

Cloth, 284 pp., 16 illus., 6 x 9"
978-1-58465-732-3 • $50.00

Slavery and Sentiment
The Politics of Feeling in Black Atlantic Antislavery Writing, 1770–1850
Christine Levecq

Illuminates the political dimensions of American and British antislavery texts written by blacks

“Pioneering and provocative, in Slavery and Sentiment Christine Levecq closely reads both black and white writers to argue that the transatlantic English-speaking world saw the development of not one but two often competing and sometimes complementary Black Atlantics during the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries. Demonstrating the roles the tension between republican and libertarian concepts of sentiment played in the creation of these Black Atlantics, Slavery and Sentiment should be read by anyone interested in diasporan, literary, and social studies of the period.”

—Vincent Carretta, Professor of English, University of Maryland, and author of Equiano, the African: Biography of a Self-Made Man

Cloth, 324 pp., 6 x 9"
978-1-58465-734-7 • $50.00

To view all the titles from the University of New Hampshire Press go to: www.upne.com/unh.html
Fashioning Faces
The Portraitive Mode in British Romanticism

Elizabeth A. Fay

A fresh look at how literary and visual portraiture in the Romantic era embodied a newly commercial culture

“Elizabeth Fay brilliantly illuminates that fertile intersection among the arts that is marked by what she calls portraitive practices, that intensely earnest variety of representational play that explores the uneasy connections and the insubstantial boundaries between the Romantic-era subject and object, as mediated both by visual portraiture and by verbal self-depiction. Theoretically subtle and culturally sophisticated, this is interdisciplinary scholarship at its best; it opens up remarkable new vistas on how we ‘see’ the Romantics—and on how they ‘saw’ themselves.”

—Stephen C. Behrendt, George Holmes Distinguished University Professor of English, University of Nebraska

Fashionable Acts
Opera and Elite Culture in London, 1780–1880

Jennifer Hall-Witt

A vibrant look at changes in British elite culture through the lens of opera-going

“Among the best and most erudite first monographs this year.”

—Linda Colley, Times Literary Supplement

“Following in the footsteps of scholars like Rachel Cowgill, Hall-Witt discusses the gender divide, here tracing the role of women as the social ‘doorkeepers’ while men busied themselves with running the country. The author describes how the opera house changed as the British economy and political hierarchy became more merchant driven . . . This is a book for those interested in British cultural history . . . Recommended.”

—Choice
Edith Wharton and the Making of Fashion

Katherine Joslin

The origins of the modern fashion industry as seen through the works of Edith Wharton

“Joslin brings a new Edith Wharton into view as she draws on several kinds of cultural critique. By focusing her text on certain of Wharton’s novels, Joslin creates a practical guide to reading Wharton that is different from any of the current scholarship on this author. This choice of key books works well to illustrate the dimensions of national fashion, and less directly, of national character.”

—Linda Wagner-Martin, Frank Borden Hanes Professor of English and Comparative Literature, The University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill

Cloth, 252 pp., 95 illus. (23 color), 7 x 10"
978-1-58465-779-8 • $30.00

Emily Dickinson and the Labor of Clothing

Daneen Wardrop

A history of nineteenth-century fashion through the works of Emily Dickinson

“This is an impressive work, with sharp, informative, and useful writing. When Wardrop states that her manuscript presents a very different Emily Dickinson, she does not overstate. Rather than critique existing secondary material on Dickinson, however, she creates the ‘new’ persona through providing information very few of us have known. This reading of Emily Dickinson in her time and her contexts—biographical as well as cultural—is truly valuable.”

—Linda Wagner-Martin, Frank Borden Hanes Professor of English and Comparative Literature, The University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill

Cloth, 264 pp., 62 illus., 6 x 9"
978-1-58465-780-4 • $30.00
Meat, Modernity, and the Rise of the Slaughterhouse

Edited by Paula Young Lee

An interdisciplinary look at the rise of the slaughterhouse in nineteenth-century Europe and the Americas

“One of the very few books we’ve seen on this subject. An unexpectedly fascinating collection of essays by historians, geographers, economists, and even an architectural historian (who is the general editor), covering France, Germany, Britain, the United States, and Mexico. The subjects range from technology to sanitation to humanitarian concerns, with rich material on the culture and traditions of the abattoir.”

—Kitchen Arts & Letters

---

Trolley Wars

Streetcar Workers on the Line

Scott Molloy

A groundbreaking study of public transportation in the Gilded Age and its place in the emerging American city

“This gracefully-written and well-illustrated book, which in spite of its brevity has the unhurried pace of a bygone era, provides a fine introduction to the moment when mass transportation transformed life in America’s cities.”

—Labor History

---

Remodeling the Nation

The Architecture of American Identity, 1776–1858

Duncan Faherty

A rich analysis of how post Revolutionary Americans conceptualized the early Republic through metaphors of home building

“. . . compelling . . . Faherty offers readers an important story about the naturalization of a national landscape in the midst of spectral occupational histories that continually challenged the fantasy of a coherent national identity.”

—American Literature
Backlist Titles

Charles Eliot Norton
The Art of Reform in Nineteenth-Century America
Linda Dowling
An impassioned reassessment of a major nineteenth-century public intellectual
“From his friendships with Emerson and Carlyle to his influence on the Pre-Raphaelite and Ruskinian movements, the American man of letters Charles Eliot Norton played an important role in the cultural cross-pollination that so enriched Britain and the United States in the 19th century. Drawing on unpublished portions of his journals, Dowling shows a man bereft of religious faith struggling to develop a principled ethic of civic liberalism in contrast to the predominant values of the Gilded Age.”
—Atlantic Monthly

Oliver Wendell Holmes in Paris
Medicine, Theology, and The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table
William C. Dowling
An innovative study that links the themes of Holmes’s best-known literary works to his medical training in nineteenth-century Paris
“Dowling provides an absorbing narrative of a man and his moment.”
—Times Literary Supplement
“A provocative look at nineteenth-century medicine's impact on the American mind, body, and soul.”
—New England Quarterly

Schoolroom Poets
Childhood, Performance, and the Place of American Poetry, 1865–1917
Angela Sorby
A fresh and provocative approach to the popular “schoolroom poets” and the reading public who learned them by heart.
“Angela Sorby’s Schoolroom Poets is an extraordinarily intelligent, even brilliant reading of nineteenth-century American popular poetry and of the culture that gave it birth.”
—Modern Philology
“Schoolroom Poets is a beautifully researched, provocative guide to an aspect of American literary history that lies before us, as well as behind us.”
—The New England Quarterly Review

To view all the titles from the University of New Hampshire Press go to: www.upne.com/unh.html
Backlist Titles

At Home in the City
Urban Domesticity in American Literature and Culture, 1850–1930
Betsy Klimasmith
A lucidly written analysis of urban literature and evolving residential architecture
“Beautifully written and illustrated...this book is a fascinating read from a promising young scholar. Anyone interested in urban studies, American historical fiction, and architecture will be delighted.”
—Choice

Capital Speculations
Writing and Building Washington, D.C.
Sarah Luria
An imaginative analysis of the interplay between rhetoric and physical space in the creation of the nation’s capital
“One of the most lively and engaging books now available about Washington’s urban design, architecture and interior spaces...Capital Speculations is the successful fruit of a cross-disciplinary approach to writing about place that draws on everything from literature to politics to paintings and maps...Capital Speculations has the potential to change several of the academic fields in which Luria is conversant.”
—The Washington Post

Black Powder, White Lace
The du Pont Irish and Cultural Identity in Nineteenth-Century America
Margaret M. Mulrooney
A richly textured, interdisciplinary study of a significant Irish-American community
“Margaret Mulrooney’s Black Powder White Lace argues convincingly that the Irish who worked at the du Pont Company’s Delaware-based black powder mill enjoyed economic mobility while sustaining those aspects of Irish culture that mattered most to them.”
—Journal of American Ethnic History
The Romantic Poetess
European Culture, Politics, and Gender, 1820–1840
Patrick Vincent

An elegant and provocative study of the literary and political effects of the work of romantic poetesses in England, France, and Russia

“[A] useful multinational study. . . [a] valuable and interesting consideration of women of this period writing in Britain, France, and Russia.”

— Tulsa Studies in Women’s Literature

“The Romantic Poetess offers a well-argued and convincing interpretation of the nexus of factors that marks the turning point in the poetess’ vitality.”

— European Romantic Review

Paper, 296 pp., 6 x 9”
978-1-58465-431-5
$29.95

---

The Exotic Woman in Nineteenth-Century British Fiction and Culture
A Reconsideration
Piya Pal-Lapinski

A fresh and provocative approach to representations of exotic women in Victorian Britain

“[Pal-Lapinski] disputes the claims of much postcolonial criticism and argues that 19th-century representations of the sexually volatile odalisque did not reduce such women to passive recipients of the imperial, patriarchal gaze.”

— Choice

“The Exotic Woman is a serious addition to nineteenth-century scholarship, particularly of Victorian imperialist anxieties. Pal-Lapinski’s dense and knowledgeable study will serve anyone interested in nineteenth century culture, politics, and science.”

— Victorian Studies

Paper, 192 pp., 13 illus., 6 x 9”
978-1-58465-429-2
$24.95

---

Recovering the New
Transatlantic Roots of Modernism
Edward S. Cutler

An innovative look at the process and development of nineteenth-century modernism

“Cutler moves nimbly between Europe and the United States, demonstrating in a succession of convincing readings that self-consciously modern cultural phenomena identified as French are often the result of ongoing exchanges with related developments in American urban centers.”

— American Literature

Paper, 224 pp., 13 illus., 6 x 9”
978-1-58465-271-7
$24.95

---

To view all the titles from the University of New Hampshire Press go to: www.upne.com/unh.html
Questionable Charity
Gender, Humanitarianism, and Complicity in U.S. Literary Realism
William M. Morgan

A fascinating reevaluation of U.S. literary realism during the Gilded Age

“Questionable Charity, through its lucid prose and an equally clear sense of its intervention in current literary and cultural debates, offers an important critique, particularly of white masculinity, that complicates the relation between ethics and identitarian markers of race and gender.”

—The Journal of American History

After Franklin
The Emergence of Autobiography in Post-Revolutionary America, 1780–1830
Stephen Carl Arch

An analysis of the foundations of autobiography in America

“Through textual analysis [Arch] relates the rise of autobiography to the social and ideological situation of post-revolutionary America and shows how the development of modern media of print communication facilitated the relationship between an author and a mass readership in far-flung places. The broadest significance of Arch’s work, however, lies in its contribution to a growing interest in the origins of the modern sense of self.”

—William and Mary Quarterly

Forthcoming in 2010
Thinking America
New England Intellectuals and the Varieties of American Identity
Andrew Taylor

A penetrating look at major figures in the development of American intellectual culture, from Emerson to Santayana, in a literary and philosophical perspective.

Cloth, 256 pp., 6 x 9” • 978-1-58465-862-7 • $55.00
Becoming Modern: New Nineteenth-Century Studies
Series Editors: Sarah Way Sherman, Janet Aikins Yount, Rohan McWilliam, Janet Polasky

A series sponsored by the University of New Hampshire Press that maps the complexity of historical change and assesses the formation of ideas, movements, and institutions crucial to our own times. Publishing books that examine the emergence of modernity in North America and Europe, the series encompasses topics as small as the suburban home and as large as the nation-state. Projects that address the past’s difference from the present as well as its continuity are also encouraged. Although individual titles need not be international in scope, the editors seek books that speak to scholars on both sides of the Atlantic and especially welcome lively interdisciplinary studies capable of reaching a wide audience.

Reading Dress Series
Series Editors: Katherine Joslin and Daneen Wardrop

Published under the auspices of Becoming Modern: New Nineteenth-Century Studies, Reading Dress publishes books by scholars whose work emphasizes the place of fashion in the emergence of modernity in North America and Europe. We publish scholarship that engages questions of clothing, textiles, design, and production in relation to literature and history. Accessibly written interdisciplinary work, with a transatlantic perspective are especially competitive.

Send submissions to:
Phyllis D. Deutsch, Editor-in-Chief • Richard Pult, Acquisitions Editor • (603) 448-1533
University Press of New England, One Court Street, Suite 250 • Lebanon, NH 03766

ORDERING INFORMATION

📞 (800) 421-1561 / fax (603) 448-9429 ⏯️ www.upne.com

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Quantity</th>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Price</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Shipping is $5.00/per order

Total ________________________________

Payment Method

_____ MasterCard  _____ VISA  _____ American Express  _____ Discover
_____ U.S. Check made payable to University Press of New England

Card No. ____________________________ Expiration Date ____________________________

Signature _______________________________________________________________________

Shipping Name / Address ___________________________________________________________

City / State / Zip _________________________________________________________________

Daytime phone / email ____________________________________________________________

☐ Yes, I would like to receive monthly online-only discount offers and notification of new releases

Prices subject to change without notice