

GERMAN STUDIES

The Department of German Studies offers two routes to the major:

Major A focuses on literary and non-literary texts in their historical and intellectual contexts, comprising courses offered by the Department of German Studies. With permission of the Chair, one appropriate course in another department may be substituted.

Prerequisites

_____ Any two of the following: German 6, 8, 9, 10, or 11 or permission of the Chair

_____ Term _____

_____ Term _____

Requirements

_____ Eight other courses numbered above 29; normally, participation in the Foreign Study Program in Berlin with major credit for German 30 and 31. German 42 and 43, which are in translation, require additional work in German.

One of these advanced courses may be replaced with an appropriate advanced course in another department or program such as History, Music, Film Studies, Government, Philosophy, Jewish Studies

All senior majors must take German 86 (Culminating Experience) during the winter term. Students writing an honors thesis must also enroll in German 87 during spring term. All graduating majors will give a senior presentation based on their work in German 86 and 87, as applicable, at the end of spring term.

Major B combines resources of the Department of German Studies with a coherent selection of those of other departments and programs, such as Art History, Comparative Literature, Film Studies, Geography, Government, History, Music, Philosophy, Religion and Jewish Studies. In principle, any relevant course in the Dartmouth curriculum that is approved by the Department of German Studies may qualify for this major.
