concentrating in archaeology should take at least one topical course and one regional course in archaeology. Students interested in graduate studies in archaeology should have a statistics course and fieldwork experience that can be gained by taking an archaeological field school for transfer credit.

Socio-cultural anthropology addresses broad questions about what it means to be human in contemporary societies and cultures, as well as those of the recent past. Socio-cultural anthropologists systematically explore topics such as technology and material culture, social organization, economies, political and legal systems, language, ideologies and religions, health and illness, and social change. Students concentrating in sociocultural anthropology are strongly advised to take the course in ethnographic research methods, Anthro. 18. Students planning on graduate studies in socio-cultural anthropology are advised to take Main Currents in Anthropology, Anthro. 73.

Biological anthropology is the study of human biological variation and evolution. Biological anthropologists seek to document and explain the patterning of biological variation among contemporary human populations, trace the evolution of our lineage through time in the fossil record, and provide a comparative perspective on human uniqueness by placing our species in the context of other living primates. Students concentrating in biological anthropology are advised to take a course in statistics, as well as one or more advanced courses in biological sciences.

Under special circumstances, students may petition the Anthropology faculty to substitute a course from another department or program to count for the Anthropology major. The petition should be submitted to the Chair, along with a copy of the syllabus for the substitute course and a list of the student’s major courses. The petition must be approved by a vote of the Anthropology Department faculty.

Anthropology Minor
The minor in Anthropology comprises six courses, which include Anthropology 1 or 3 plus one area course in anthropology, one course in biological anthropology, one course in archaeology, and two additional courses within the Department to be selected by the student. If Anthropology 3 is not taken in fulfillment of the first requirement, then one of the two courses selected by the student must be a topical anthropology course.

A culminating experience is required for the major and must be satisfied by completion of a Culminating Seminar selected from one of the following areas: Area/Topical Anthropology (73), Archaeology (75), or Biological Anthropology (77), to be taken as one of the ten courses required for the major.

Modified Major: The Modified Major consists of seven courses in anthropology, one of which must be a culminating seminar and another of which will normally be Anthropology 1 or 3, plus four courses above the prerequisite level in one or more other department(s) or program(s). The 11 courses must form a unified, coherent program of study. Students wishing to modify their Anthropology major must submit a written rationale that makes clear the coherence and purpose of their modified major. This rationale, can be signed by any faculty in the Anthropology Department, and must be submitted with the major card to the Registrar.

Concentrations: Anthropology majors may choose to concentrate in one or more subfields of anthropology by taking at least four courses in archaeology, biological anthropology, or sociocultural anthropology.

Archaeology is the scientific study of past human behavior and societies from material remains of the earliest human ancestors to recent times. Students
ANTHROPOLOGY MAJOR WORKSHEET

Requirements: Ten courses in Anthropology to complete the major

If Anthropology 1 is taken, you will need to fulfill the following:

Four courses, including one from each of the following areas: Archaeology, Area, Topical, and Biological

________________________________________________________________________ Term ____________
________________________________________________________________________ Term ____________
________________________________________________________________________ Term ____________
________________________________________________________________________ Term ____________

Any four additional courses from the Department offerings

________________________________________________________________________ Term ____________
________________________________________________________________________ Term ____________
________________________________________________________________________ Term ____________
________________________________________________________________________ Term ____________

If Anthropology 3 is taken, you will need to fulfill the following:

Anthropology 3 ________________ Term ________________

Three courses, including one from each of the following area: Archaeology, Area, and Biological

________________________________________________________________________ Term ____________
________________________________________________________________________ Term ____________
________________________________________________________________________ Term ____________

Any five additional courses from the department offerings

________________________________________________________________________ Term ____________
________________________________________________________________________ Term ____________
________________________________________________________________________ Term ____________
________________________________________________________________________ Term ____________

The Culminating Experience Seminar (ANTH 73, 75, 77)

________________________________________________________________________ Term ____________

ANTHROPOLOGY MINOR WORKSHEET

Requirements: Six courses in Anthropology to complete the minor

Anthropology 1 or 3 ________________ Term ________________

Plus one area course in Anthropology, one Course in Biological Anthropology, one course in Archaeology

________________________________________________________________________ Term ____________
________________________________________________________________________ Term ____________
________________________________________________________________________ Term ____________

If Anthropology 3 is taken, you will need to fulfill the following:

Anthropology 3 ________________ Term ________________

Three courses, including one from each of the following area: Archaeology, Area, and Biological

________________________________________________________________________ Term ____________
________________________________________________________________________ Term ____________
________________________________________________________________________ Term ____________

Any two additional courses from among the department offerings. (If Anthropology 3 was NOT taken, one course should be a cultural Anthropology course).

________________________________________________________________________ Term ____________
________________________________________________________________________ Term ____________